Simplify, connect, and thrive with Web EDI

Improving your accessibility and connectivity in your operations – Web EDI Brochure

What is Web EDI?

Web EDI, short for Web Electronic Data Interchange, is an online browser-based EDI solution that allows your business to work easily with your customers' documents. Web EDI provides businesses with unmatched speed and visibility through a web-based portal by automating traditional manual processes and connecting buyers and suppliers to trade electronically anywhere at any time.

While traditional EDI requires you to install and setup a specialised software, Web EDI offers a user-friendly interface where you can send and receive documents easily. Since our solution operates through standard web browsers, it becomes easy for your business to access and manage EDI transactions from any device connected to the internet regardless of geographic location or technical capabilities.

With built-in features for proactive alerts and notifications, combined with the ease of self-service functionality, you get to stay in control of your business with full visibility from start to end. Web EDI is also fully configurable, meaning you have the means to trade 100% electronically while supporting your partner's needs depending on the nature of your business.

Web EDI covers a wide range of automated features such as purchase order delivery to suppliers, document flip functionality, real-time notifications, and supplier document validation. Other documents included are acknowledgements, changes, updates, and ASNs (Advanced Shipment Notice).

Why Web EDI is the right solution for suppliers

The key benefits of Web EDI as a solution for suppliers are accuracy, efficiency, cost savings, and customer satisfaction. Connecting to Web EDI allows the document exchange processes to be done accurately. Through the work of an automated system, there is a lower risk of human error, redundancy, and delays.

This way, the burden of administrative and overwhelming tasks is removed, and businesses can then focus their resources on strategic initiatives.

Web EDI provides suppliers with a unified platform where they can handle interactions with all clients efficiently from a centralised location. This eliminates the need to log into multiple portals to gain access to the information you need. It also removes an additional step where suppliers have to manually navigate through different systems. Being able to use a single interface for document exchange boosts your business efficiency and streamlines your workflow management.

Web EDI works as a cost-effective alternative because this means you do not have to invest in fully integrated EDI solutions. You also get to save on resources and time with its simplified onboarding process for new trading partners. Suppliers can immediately gain access to a large network of trading partners on the platform where their accounts can easily be set up and trading can be done quickly.

With accuracy and efficiency, customer satisfaction becomes naturally achievable. Automation ensures on-time deliveries and consistent quality, leading to happier customers and stronger partnerships.
